Retail (Option .2.)

Access

If it were not the first time that we accede already it would have memorized the data of the department to which it is acceded, that must be obligatorily of Retail type.

Secondly, it checks the consistency of dates, in case we had forgotten to make a "Z", or if the previous day we did not work, it gives us the option to CONTINUE, or position ourselves in today (ZERO), yesterday (ONE), or tomorrow (TWO). If we press a zero, one, or two, it closes the previous movements, if any.

The image shows two screenshots of a POS system interface. The left screenshot displays a dialog box with the title "Distinct date than today" and "Active date: 28/10/2019". It contains three rows of date selection options:

0	29/10/2019
1	28/10/2019
2	30/10/2019

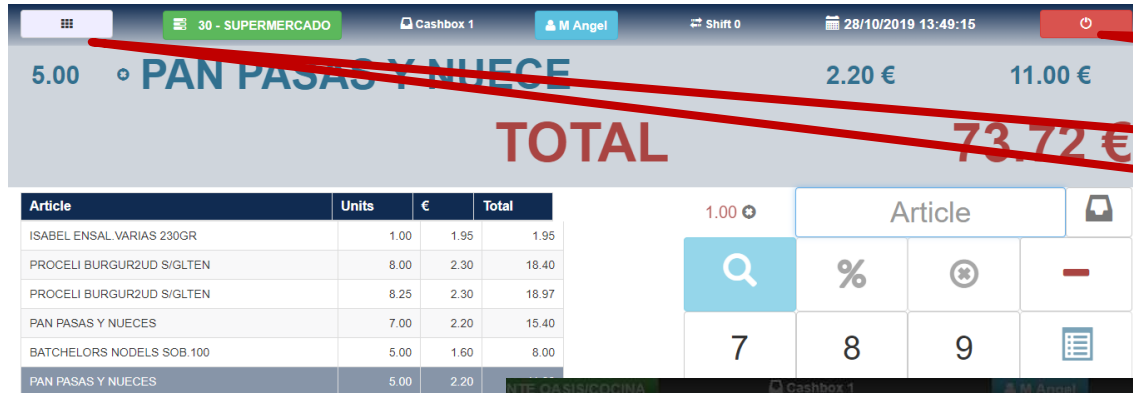

Below these options is a green "CONTINUE" button. The right screenshot shows the "NEW CLIENT" screen. At the top, it displays "30 - SUPERMERCADO", "Cashbox 1", "M Angel", "Shift 0", and the date "28/10/2019 13:45:52". Below the title, there is a table with columns "Article", "Units", "€", and "Total". To the right of the table is a numeric keypad with various function icons:

1.00	Article
🔍	%	⊕	-
7	8	9	📄
4	5	6	📄
1	2	3	CE
.	0	↓

Next we will have the initial screen for loading and processing the POS - Retail
